1. The Game

1.1. Outline

In the Game of Intrigue, you compete against at least two other players. You draw cards and trade them with other players to gain an advantage.

The most important cards are the ♠ Standing cards. If you lose all your ♠ Standing cards you are eliminated. You can play it safe and try to stay in the game or you can take risks and try to eliminate other players.

When everyone except two players are eliminated. The player with the most valuable cards wins.

But beware! After players draw their 🃏 Role cards they get powerful abilities or goals that can even win them the game.

1.2. Setup

Separate the ♠ Standing cards from the rest.

Each player gets 3 ♠ Standing cards. The rest are removed from the game.

Separate the 🃏 Colored cards from the rest.

Sort them by 🃏 Color and give each player one of the piles.

The 🃏 Color Token is put on the table in front of the player visible to everyone. Each player then shuffles their 🃏 Colored cards and puts them face down in their personal pile.

The remaining 🃏 Colored cards are removed from the game.

The 🃏 Role cards are shuffled and each player is dealt one to the bottom of their personal pile.

The rest of the 🃏 Role cards are removed from the game.

Mix the rest of the cards into the draw pile. Each player can now draw a total of 5 cards from the draw pile or their personal pile or a mix of both (e.g. 4 from the draw pile and 1 from the personal pile) and put them in their hand with their ♠ Standing cards.

1.3. Phases

The game is played in rounds, that are split up into phases. All players collectively decide when to move on to the next phase together. You can decide on a turn order inside of the phases (like clockwise or counter-clockwise) or spontaneously decide who goes next. After the last phase the next round starts.

The phases are:

1.3.1. Discussion

Players can openly or secretly (in another room or with paper notes or via messenger etc.) discuss the following round or future strategies.

Lying and manipulation are allowed

1.3.2. Trade

Each player now gets one Chance to Trade one card with a player of their choosing. You will have to trade to participate in the Announcement and Draw phase. So even just trading for the sake of it can be a good strategy. Bluffing is allowed!

A trade happens between two players:

1. Player 1 offers a card to Player 2 by openly stating the card and the player they want to trade with (can be a bluff)
2. Player 2 decides if they want to trade. If they do they offer a card to Player 1 (also openly stating which card; can also be a bluff)
3. Player 1 decides if they want to trade
3. If any player wants to object to the trade they can now do so. Upon an accusation the legality of the traded cards is checked (see Legality check)
4. If both parties decided to trade (and no illegal cards were found in the previous step) they each take the card offered to them.
5. Both players now qualify for the following phases.

Example:

- Max announces they want to trade an Orange  Favour with Rue
- Rue accepts and offers an  Asset card (Value 8) to Max
- Max accepts the trade
- Alex objects to the trade because they are Orange and know they haven't pulled any  Favour cards from their personal pile yet, so it must be a bluff. They also know from a previous  Secret card that Max has a lot of illegal cards in their hand.
- The legality of the trade is checked
 - No illegal cards were traded
- Alex decides to pay a fine to Rue
- Rue draws a card from Alex's hand
- Max gives Rue a  Testimony card (Value 2) secretly
- Rue gives Max a Blue  Favour card (Value 3) secretly
- Max and Rue now qualify for the Announcement and Draw phase
- Alex and the other players can still trade with each other

1.3.3. Announcement

Only after a successful trade can a player participate in the Announcement and Draw phase.

In the Announcement phase players can announce  Social and  Speech cards.

1. Each qualifying player puts one card face down in front of them
2. If anyone wants to announce their card they turn it around for everyone to see
3. Announcements get resolved (See  Social cards and  Speech cards)
4. All the cards in front of the players get put on the discard pile

1.3.4. Draw

Only for players that successfully traded in the Trade phase and announced in the Announcement phase

Each player draws cards from the draw pile or their personal pile until they have 8 cards in their hand.

If the draw pile is empty mix the discard pile into it

If a player has 0 ≈ Standing they loose and have to decide where they want to put their cards:

- on the discard pile
- into a player hand (inheritance)
 - the chosen player must discard the amount of cards they received

If only two players are left the player with the most combined card value wins.

Tipp: Keep your cards hidden as long as possible.

You almost never have to show your cards to other players (see Visible on back).

If you have someone else's ♣ Pact card you cannot:

- use a 💬 Social card on them

3. Vocabulary

3.1. Legality check

When a player objects to a trade the legality of the traded cards is checked. You can see if a card is illegal by looking at the back of the card (see Visible on back).

If any traded card is illegal:

1. The player offering an illegal card will have to pay a fine to the accuser.
2. If any illegal  Pacts were found to be offered remove them from the game. (Tipp:  Pacts are the only illegal cards without a value)
3. The trade does not happen; Everyone keeps their offered cards

If no card is illegal:

1. The accusing player will have to pay a fine to one of the trading players (accusors choice)
2. The trade goes on.

3.2. Paying a fine

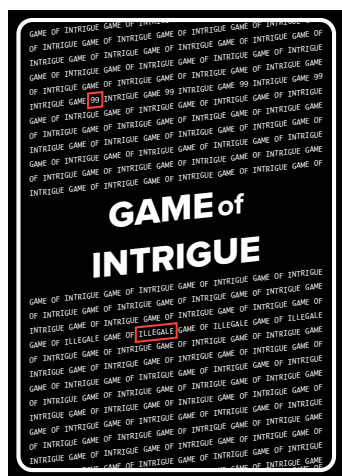

You have to let the other player draw a card from your hand or personal pile. You can choose to protect either 3 cards from your hand (by putting them aside) or your personal pile from being drawn from. If you have less than 3 cards in your hand, you cannot protect any cards. If a  Pact is drawn it is removed from the game.

3.3. Removed from the game

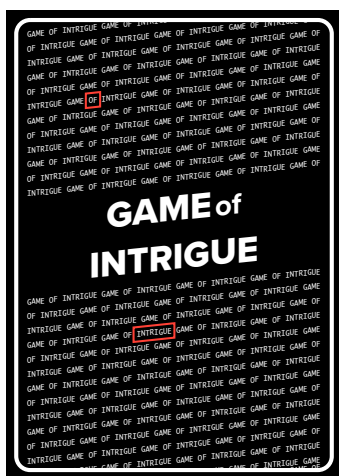

Put them back in the box. They are not to be used this game anymore.
